

We live in a new era of history, one in which living to be old has become routine, at least for most of us. In the 20th century Americans gained 30 years in life expectancy, more than had been reached in the preceding 5,000 years of human history.

What a mystery! Too much reality for us to grasp.